*Columbia Squad Practices With A Greased Ball

Columbia lined up the most powerful football array yesterday that it has been able to get together at any time this season. The fact that there was no scrimmage on South Field because of the rain, and that the practice, such as it was, took place in the university symnashum, did not blight the air of cheerfulness that pervaded the training quarters when all the varsity regulars who have been out of the game for one reason or another trotted to their places and went through a dummy scrimmage drill.

Of all the players Howard Miller, the star 1915 quarterback, is the only one, in addition to Sterling Van De Water, who was unable to don a uniform. Both he and Wan De Water will probably be unable to play again this season. Henry Monroe, half-back, Dal Cochran, fullback, Buddy Wilber, right tackie, and John Kennedy, left end, the players who were bruised up a bit in the Vermont game and were forced to lay off for a day or two, were the ones who cheered Metcalfe day by getting back.

The Columbia head coach sprang something new on the eleven by putting it through a long signal drill and them the dummy scrimmage with a greased ball. Metcalf anticipates a muddy, rain soaked field, and wants to get his players accustomed to the feel of a slippery ball. They didn't get much chance to feel the ball yearterday because they no sooner got it in their arms than it popped across the gym and it was never captured until cornered by half a dozen players. The alippery pigskin gave the squad so much practice in handling the ball under most adverse conditions.

Goldberg, the new centre, had plenty of experience in handling the ball under most adverse conditions, and Metcalf seemed well pleased with his work. Joe Brown in his new role as halfoack had little opportunity to show what he could do.

The New York University football squad had to forgo a scrimmase on was no scrimmage on South Field because of the rain, and that the prac-

Only a few signals were run off, because Diek Bustis found the symnasium too small to be of real value and the players adjourned to the football room for a black-board talk.

Fraser Leads Field for Golf Title in Philly

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20 .- James Fraser of the Sea View Golf Club led Fraser of the Sea View Golf Club led the field of professional and amateur golfers in the tournament for the open championship of the Golf Association of Philadelphia, which began yesterday on the links of the Philimont Country Club. Because of a heavy downpour of rain only eighteen holes were played, and it was decided that fifty-four holes instead of the usual seventy-two will comprise the tournament. Fraser had a card of 75, 38 going out and 37 coming in. Emmett French of New York and Peter O'Hara of Pittsburgh tied for second place with cards of 76 each. and place with cards of 76 each.
